

Meredith L. Mooney

Meredith L. Mooney lives in Lowell with her husband and son and is passionate about community building, public service, and creating vibrant places where people and local businesses can thrive. She currently serves as Economic Development Director for the Town of Brookline, where she leads initiatives focused on strengthening commercial areas, supporting small businesses, and advancing long-term planning efforts that enhance community life.

Before joining Brookline, Meredith held several policy and government affairs roles at Boston University, where she worked closely with municipal and state leaders on public policy and community relations initiatives.

She holds an MBA from Boston University Questrom School of Business with a concentration in Public and Non-Profit Management, and a BA in Psychology from New York University.

In addition to her professional work, Meredith currently serves as President of the Belvidere Neighborhood Association. Outside of work and volunteer service, Meredith enjoys cooking, taking walks around her neighborhood, and spending time with her son and extended family. She is proud to support the Pollard Memorial Library Foundation and its mission to strengthen library services and opportunities for the Lowell community.
